

Oktoberfest Beers to Order Around San Diego

A variety of local craft beer options to quench your thirst and welcome fall

Summer's heat may still be sticking around, but the flavors of fall have arrived in San Diego. Traditionally, Oktoberfest celebrations begin in September (but "Septemberfest" just doesn't have the same ring to it) and all around the county, breweries are releasing their takes on Oktoberfest-inspired beers. Here's a range of local options to kick off a much-needed celebration.

Märzen — The Original 40 Brewing Company

Original 40 is pulling out all the seasonal stops, offering favorites like their German pilsner, helles, and hefeweizen to pair with traditional bratwursts and pretzels. But it's their 5.6 percent ABV Parte Märzen that really shines; the dry, crisp lager will be available on draft and in cans at the North Park tasting room starting Friday, September 17.
